

Ampco System Parking Names New Head of Business Development

Senior Vice President Rick Wilson Will Lead Efforts to Drive Growth in ABM Industries' Parking Subsidiary

NEW YORK, Jan 27, 2010 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- Ampco System Parking, a subsidiary of ABM Industries Incorporated (NYSE:ABM), has named Rick Wilson as its new senior vice president of business development. ABM Industries, which operates through its subsidiaries, is the leading provider of facility services in the United States.

Wilson will be responsible for developing Ampco's parking and transportation sales and new business opportunities nationwide. He comes to Ampco with almost 25 years of leadership experience in the parking industry, including senior operational and business development positions at several major U.S. parking companies. Wilson will help drive organic growth at Ampco, expanding its national footprint as a leading provider of parking services. Ampco manages more than 1,600 office and multi-use parking operations around the country, serving diverse facilities from airports and commercial office complexes to special event venues and hospitals.

Said Ampco System Parking President Mark Muglich: "Rick brings a wealth of experience, proven leadership and solid results to his new role as head of business development for Ampco. We are excited to have him on board and look forward to supporting his efforts to deliver superior growth in our business."

Wilson began his new position as senior vice president at Ampco in November and is based in Los Angeles. He also is actively involved in many industry-related organizations and is a past president of the California Parking Association.

Said Wilson: "I am delighted to be working with the Ampco team and its deep bench of experienced professionals and look forward to creating and seizing opportunities to grow the business in both established core markets and new areas of the country."
